Product Overview

The Excel range of modular power distribution strips introduces flexibility and design options which until now have not been available in products of this type. Core to the product range is a U shaped housing, manufactured from high quality, lightweight aluminium which is terminated with a PVC mains connection lead, with commando style and standard 3 pin plug options.

A range of socket modules are available which snap into this housing quickly, easily, and securely without the need for tooling.

The range of modules available enable users to mix and match socket styles to suit initial - and more importantly - changing connectivity or socket density requirements. Current 'standard' power distribution units offer little if any flexibility, meaning users have to install single style socket units, multiple units, or purchase power leads or converters to match equipment connectors with power strip sockets.
